

... Council

 Just don't think everybody is getting a fair shake."

OLSON joined the plea for more time to study the proposal. "Mr. Isen was just elected last April and he has 3 1/2 years to serve," he said. "Why has this got to be voted on tonight?"

Several members of the audience joined the debate at that point. Mrs. Sandra Phillips, 20545 Madison St., called the move "outrageous" and said, "It certainly seems to me that there are ulterior motives here."

Lyman, in answer to Mrs. Phillips, said he felt he had been elected to represent the voters and to bring some matters to the attention of the voters. "I am proposing to submit this to the voters," he told her.

ATTORNEY Jeffrey Brad- piece then joined the debate, asking for a delay of one week to permit interested citizens to be heard. Brad- piece, who lives at 23313 Date Ave., told Lyman, "You know and I know this is going to a 4-3 decision."

When Lyman asked him how he knew, Bradpiece declared he was not politically naive and added, "If I'm wrong, I'll not only be gratified, I'll apologize."

Isen, waiting until the end to express himself, charged the move was the result of a "campaign of vilification" which was started when he voted against a proposed cemetery development some weeks ago. He said the charges made against him are "a bunch of poppycock and political chicanery."

"I have no veto power," Isen said, "I have one vote and for anyone to accuse me of trying to run things is out of order."

THE MAYOR said charges made against him impuned his honesty and added, "If my vote could be controlled and I was ready to withdraw my opposition to the cemetery, this would not have happened."

The action, Isen declared "smells to high heaven. It is a cover... scheme to take over..."

"This is the time for the political enemies of the mayor to rally," he declared, "but I don't think they are going to hoodwink the citizens of Torrance."

Once the vote was recorded, Isen said he was "making a call to the good, responsible people of Torrance to get interested in city government. The people who want favors are not interested in honest officials," he added, "and the people who do take them for granted."

... Library

(Continued from Page A-1) approved. Kurtz, who opposed the decision to establish an independent system here, said now that the decision has been made, "any delay could be detrimental."

He was joined by several councilmen. J. A. Beasley said postponing the purchase of books would only be "compounding a bad situation."

Ferraro's plan was approved by unanimous vote.

IN OTHER action, the council:

• Set 7 p.m. next Tuesday to hear Civil Service Commission recommendations on a proposed new Civil Service Ordinance. Commissioner L. E. Townsend will represent the commission at the session. A special public hearing on the new ordinance is scheduled Wednesday, Sept. 14, at 7 p.m.

• Held for two weeks a recommendation that access from a private parking lot be granted to Dalemead Street just west of Crenshaw Boulevard. Councilmen previously have denied the request, but the city's Traffic Commission has recommended a one-year trial period.

• Ordered filed a report by Ferraro which explains the city's Uniform Housing Code enforcement program. Isen, who asked for the report, said he was satisfied with the provisions of the code.

... Schools

TITLE III of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act provides for grants to local public educational agencies for "supplementary educational centers and service to establish exemplary model school programs."

Torrance's concept of a regional center where students from surrounding school districts could participate in occupational skills training qualified the district for a $92,562 planning grant under Title III. During the coming year, plans will be drawn up for classes to be conducted at an occupational skills center which will be built on surplus land donated to the Torrance Unified School District by the Navy for this purpose.

Local entitlement under Title II of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act, which was set up to encourage library growth, will provide for enrichment materials for the district Educational Materials Building.

ROUNDING out the programs which receive federal funding are the NDEA programs — those financed half by the federal government and half by the school district under the National Defense Education Act. (These funds are administered by the state of California for the federal government.)

In the past, NDEA matching funds have helped set up science and language laboratories at both the elementary and high school level.
